New kid in school

Students at Wick Elementary School, Romulus, had a new classmate Wednesday – of the barnyard variety. Sixth-grade teacher Diane Golka brought the baby goat to school to help her students gain some "hands-on" learning experiences with farmyard animals. Golka raises animals on her Grass Lake farm, including her nine new baby goats. This one, Mork, is a twin and was neglected by its mother. New life for downtown planned by merchants

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

Downtown Romulus might receive a new look and a few new businesses if plans being considered by members of the Downtown Development Authority become realities.

In addition, Goddard Road might also lose a few "bends."

Members of the DDA began meeting again last February, after being inactive for several years. On the list of new ideas for the core business district of the city are a straightening of Goddard Road, construction of new parking facilities and acquisition of new land for a major development.

The DDA was created in 1980 as a development and financing arm of the city council. Nine members sit on the DDA board – five of which must have a land interest in the areas designated in the district.

The development district includes Goddard Road from Wayne Road to Five Points and all businesses and residences located on that stretch. The DDA has the legal authority to levy up to 2 mills in property taxes to all taxpayers within the district in order to fund infrastructure and other improvements which would attract new development to the region. Currently, that millage is not levied.

Andy Solak, chairman of the DDA and second vice president of Manufacturer's Bank, Romulus, said the ideas currently being discussed are all preliminary. However, he said, DDA members do not deny that the ideas are the tools needed before the downtown district can again prosper.

"Our basic goal is to make the downtown more viable. We're trying to find some project that will act as a catalyst to the preservation and enhancement of downtown," Solak said.

To provide this catalyst, DDA members and Romulus city officials are discussing a land-sale arrangement just outside of the downtown area for possible future development. Although details of the plan could not be released, Solak said an area land buyer is seeking local investors who could provide the funding needed to acquire several parcels of land in the city. The land could later be sold to a developer, Solak said.

A large discounting store and grocery market are both possible developments of the acquired land, he said.

In addition to the land acquisition, DDA members are considered removing the "bends" in Goddard Road. The curved portion of the roadway, located between Wayne Road and the entrance to downtown from the east, would be eliminated in the plan. The bend would be replaced with a straighter road connector, which would bypass some of the "blighted businesses" currently located on Goddard, according to Dennis Oakes, director of economic development.

"It's basically to clean up the access to downtown from the east. The area is kind of unsightly and blighted," Oakes explained. "The objective is to remove some of the more blighted uses."

The "blighted" area would still be accessible to the new, straight connector to Goddard Road, Oakes said, via a cul de sac or "t-in" road.

Council: Lambert should resign when he becomes police officer

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

Most city officials agree that City Councilman Alan Lambert should resign his position on the city council once he becomes a certified police officer in the city of Romulus.

However, when asked whether or not Lambert is currently creating a conflict of interest by serving on the city council and training in the Detroit Police Academy, the same officials polled are undecided.

Lambert was hired by the city as a police recruit Jan. 18, along with four other officers in training. The five must attend a 14- to 15-week course at the police academy and pass a state test before they become certified police officers, according to Police Chief Charles Wilmoth. Certification of the officers is expected in April.

Lambert also serves as one of seven members on the Romulus City Council, a seat he has occupied for six years. Lambert is paid for both positions – $15,500 plus full health, dental and life insurance for himself and his family annually as a police recruit and $5,000 annually as a city councilman.

Detroit woman's body found in parking lot

The body of a 28-year-old Detroit woman, who had suffered multiple stab wounds, was found in an industrial parking lot on Harrison Road Saturday, according to Romulus police.

The woman has been identified as Renee Denise Dennis, although specific details about her were not available, police said.

Police suspect that the woman died early Saturday morning. A worker in the nearby trucking company reported the incident at about 10:40 a.m., according to reports.

An autopsy report from the Wayne County Medical Examiner's office has not yet been issued, police said, although it was apparent that the woman died from multiple stab wounds throughout her body.

Police officials on Tuesday had no clues as to the motive behind the stabbing.

IN AN UNRELATED incident, a 19-year-old Romulus resident and a 20-year-old Ypsilanti resident were shot at about 10:45 p.m. Sunday near E&M Auto Parts on Yost Road, in Canton Township, according to police.

The Romulus man was driving, and the Ypsilanti man was a passenger in a white 1979 Pontiac LeMans.

They were later transported to Westland Medical Center by the Romulus man's mother, Boljesic said. They were listed in good condition Monday.

No arrests had been made by Monday afternoon. Canton police are continuing their investigation, Boljesic said.

Grandparents: Romulus resident fights for rights

Paulette Robinson is forming an advocacy group in Romulus to help provide grandparents with more child-visitation rights. ANP photo by Ann Grimes/staff photographer

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

In an attempt to fight for grandparents' rights, Paulette Robinson, of Romulus, wants to start an organization that would allow a place for neglected children to find shelter and safety.

Robinson said the organization, which is still in the forming stage, would allow grandparents to "take care of" their grandchildren who have been possible victims of neglect from their parents.

She said the idea for the organization stems from her seeing a young child left at home alone for several hours. Robinson would like grandparents to be able to take such a child and possibly prevent child neglect.

She said she wants to generate interest in starting the group from "anyone interested in the same things I am interested in." She said grandparents are not afforded child visitation rights under state and federal laws – a situation she would like to change.

"I'm not interested in taking anybody's child away from them. If children are being neglected, then they should be put with somebody who can take care of them until the parent can be responsible enough to take care of that child," Robinson said. "It (the group) will benefit people. Young people love to bring the kids around the grandparents. Now when it comes to parenting, they tell their parents to take a back seat. I don't want it to be like this."

Currently, two bills introduced in the Michigan House of Representatives would allow grandparents to have rights over the children if it is determined the child has been neglected by the parents. Both bills are being considered in the Michigan House Judiciary Committee.

House Bill 4466, introduced by state Rep. David Gubow (D-Huntington Woods), states that grandparents would be allowed to initiate court proceedings for visitation rights if the child has been neglected. House Bill 4467, also introduced by Gubow, states that grandparents would be allowed to initiate court proceedings any time visitation would be denied.

"The reason why I introduced this was under current Michigan law, if a grandparent wants to have visitation with their grandchild, they have no right," Gubow said. "We found there are grandparents who don't get to see their grandchildren."

Gubow said the bills still must be approved by the full House, the Michigan Senate and Gov. Blanchard before they become law.

"Hopefully, by the end of the year, it will make it through. It's only about a quarter of the way through the system," Gubow said. "I hope it will make it. There's quite a bit of support for the bills, but there is also some people on the opposition."

Although no formal meetings have been conducted with the group, Robinson said she would like to see some support in starting the organization locally.

"I would like to start this as soon as possible. I want the organization done proper and in the right way," Robinson said. Anyone wishing to obtain more information about joining in the effort is asked to call Paulette Robinson at 942-1117.

Romulus man dies in tub

A 65-year-old Goddard Road man died Friday night, apparently after his electric space heater fell into the bathtub he was in, police report.

Police officials found the man and the space heater in the bathtub shortly after the 9:40 p.m. incident. Apparently, a towel and the heater were on a stand located near the tub. Police suspect the man pulled the heater into the tub while trying to retrieve the towel.

A report from the Wayne County Medical Examiner's office is still pending. The incident is being listed as an accidental death, according to police.

Council studies retirement plan

City council members have directed city administrators to develop a plan to give retired city employees life insurance and dental benefits, the same benefits currently being given to active employees.

Council members informally gave that direction on Monday at a council study session, after four retired employees and the widow of another complained that they were not receiving the life insurance and dental plan coverage they did while they worked for the city. Currently, retired employees receive only medical insurance.

Retired city workers Russel Makowski, Walter Kusak, Owen Richardson and Norbert Czajkowski joined Violet Mientkowicz – widow of the late Frank Mientkowicz – in protesting the city insurance plan for retirees.

Life insurance coverage for the five would cost the city about $84.84 per person each month, according to information given to council members by city Personnel Director Marilyn Radford. A dental plan would cost about $17.43 per person.

Block grant hearing set

A hearing has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, March 7 in the city council chambers for petitioners to make their requests for a portion of the federal Community Development Block Grant monies the city will receive this year.

City council members will listen to groups and residents who think they should receive a share of the $85,000 in federal funding. CDBG funds are allocated by the federal government each year for any program or activity that targets low- to moderate-income residents or a specific population, such as senior citizens and handicapped residents.

Last year, the city of Romulus received $92,500 in CDBG fundings, a decrease of 6 percent.

School official wants cable help

Romulus School Board Trustee Howard Kesner may soon be contacting Mayor Beverly McAnally in an effort to combine forces.

According to Kesner, Barden Cable Television spokesmen agreed to provide $10,000 to the schools for the purchase of programming equipment. Kesner noted that the city was also promised $10,000 for the same purpose and that by combining efforts and eliminating duplication, a more sophisticated and serviceable system might be provided for the use of the schools and the city.

Assistant Superintendent of Schools Dr. Terrel LeCesne noted that the contract for the wiring for cable at the high school had already been bid but that the schools might benefit from a combination of efforts.

Dr. William Bedell, superintendent of Romulus schools, suggested that a committee be appointed to contact the city regarding the situation.

Board President Pat Patterson noted, "Let's meet with them and say, 'This is what we'd like to do, what would you like?' "

Speaker says blacks must participate in city

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

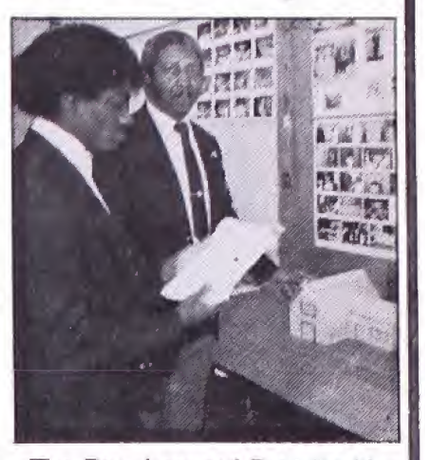
Recognition of blacks in the city has begun, but the number of blacks on the city police force and in other key offices is still lacking, according to Romulus Councilman Jimmie Raspberry, one of several speakers during a black history program at the Lorena G. Burton Building, in Romulus, Sunday.

Raspberry, city Councilman Randolph Gear and Mayor Beverly McAnally participated in the program, sponsored by the Romulus Community Organization Team. Purpose of the program was to recognize blacks within the city and provide an outlet for exhibitors to display literature on health, the judicial system, drug awareness and prevention and black history, according to Eunice Johnson, C.O.T. secretary.

The C.O.T. sponsors several cultural and art-enhancement programs throughout the year, Johnson said. The group also is designed to "keep the community aware of outstanding citizens."

Between 50 and 75 people attended the event, which was chaired by C.O.T. Vice President Lloyd Coleman. Highlights of the afternoon were a rap song about black history written by a student from Romulus Senior High School, literature readings by two senior citizens, and a play performed by three members of the Austin family, three members who depicted three generations of family history. The performance was centered around black history.

In addition, the choir from St. City Missionary Baptist Church, Romulus, entertained the group, and refreshments were served following the program.



The Rev. Leonard Paul (looking at book) and Oliver Warren examine a constructed model of a church during the black history celebration. The third annual event attracted between 50 and 75 residents and featured several city officials and community leaders.

In the third year, the black history day has been instrumental in making the community more aware of the very present black population in Romulus, Johnson said. However, the struggle for additional black equity has only just begun.

"According to Mr. Raspberry, there is a lot more to be done. A few strides have been made, though," Johnson said. "Only three blacks are on the police force, and there are two blacks on the city council. That's a big step.

"But they are encouraging more participation on the part of blacks."

This summer, the C.O.T. will also sponsor a six-week program for kids in reading, tutoring and arts and crafts. Set to be staged in the Coleman Center (on Beverly Road, across from the Burton Building), the program is designed to "keep kids off the streets and give them something to do this summer," Johnson explained.

Bus drivers' complaints prompt state investigation

Following recommendations of an investigator from the Michigan Department of Labor, Romulus School District bus parking areas will be more frequently treated with salt and plowed to prevent injuries to employees.

Joel Carr, business administrator for the district, explained during the regular board meeting last week that increased efforts to salt and plow the parking areas would begin at once. Carr said that an investigator from the state labor office had inspected the lots Feb. 22 and that the district "would be cited for violations in the bus wash area."

According to Carr and drivers present at the meeting, seven injuries have occurred in the lots due to icy conditions during the past two years. None of the individuals injured lost any time from work, Carr said.

Carr told the board members and audience that the state investigator had suggested that the district might be cited for the icy conditions in the bus wash area, but that no official word had been received early this week. The investigator suggested the problems might be prevented by clearing and salting the area earlier in the day, Carr said. In an effort to comply with the state finding, Carr said, an individual would now begin to salt and plow before drivers arrived in the lot so that paths to the buses would be clear.

No injuries have been reported in the area which the state investigator came to inspect, Carr stressed. The investigation was in response to an employee complaint regarding conditions, Carr said.

Carr explained that plowing between the buses is impossible as there is only 2 to 3 feet of space between the parked vehicles.

Early this week, however, Carr said the earlier salting procedures had alleviated most of the problem. He also noted that the plans for an inside bus wash area, expected to be constructed by next fall, would greatly reduce the problem. A separate concern of drivers in the audience was the difficulty experienced in performing the regular maintenance check of the vehicles prior to picking up students. Drivers asked Carr if any progress had been made in changing the handles presently installed on the engine hoods of the buses.

Carr explained that the drivers' concern was viable; but that the district could only contact General Motors, the manufacturer of the vehicles, in an attempt to alter the standard equipment.

Help pours in for Wasserman

Much support has been pledged to fulfill the dreams of 11-year-old, cystic fibrosis patient Dana Wasserman, of Romulus, in response to a Feb. 24 article in the Romulus Roman.

The article stated Dana wanted to ride in a semi-truck because it "looks neat." Last Sunday, Paul Engle, of Romulus, an independent truck driver, gave Dana a ride in his semi-truck along with Engle's granddaughter, who is a friend of Dana's.

Karen Engle, wife of Paul, said Dana was thrilled to ride in the truck. She said he took Dana and his granddaughter to Monroe and a McDonald's restaurant, with the entire ride lasting about one hour.

"She was thrilled to death. She loved it. Paul said he enjoyed it," Engle said, who spoke for her husband who was unavailable for comment. "This is our granddaughter's little playmate. We had a truck, so we thought we could take care of one of her dreams. I felt really sad for Dana. She looked very happy about going."

There's more.

Stella Lewis, owner of Stella's Cafe, Romulus, said she will open her restaurant doors from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. this Saturday especially for Dana, with all proceeds going to her. Stella's Cafe is normally open Monday through Friday.

She said all of the workers at the restaurant have agreed to work for free, with all tips, money for orders and donations going to Dana Wasserman.

"All funds taken in will go to Dana. I don't know anyone better I could pay back than a child like this. I will donate all of the money I make," Lewis said. "No prices will be set. It will be all donations. Let them give what they want to give, because anything brought is hers."

Lewis said there will also be a bake sale at the restaurant, with all proceeds going to Dana.

"Everybody is all for it. All of your newspapers with her little picture on it are gone because everybody has fallen in love with her."

Raspberrys to hit airwaves

Romulus City Councilman Jimmie Raspberry and his daughter Carolyn are scheduled to appear on the Easter Seals telethon, televised on WDIV-TV, this Saturday and Sunday.

Carolyn

Carolyn, 47, who has multiple sclerosis, was selected by the Easter Seals as the telethon ambassador, an adult equivilent honor to the poster child.

Raspberry said his daughter has had the disease for almost 15 years and resides at the Van Buren Convalescent Center, Van Buren Township.

Mort Crim, co-host for the show and WDIV-TV news anchorman, said Carolyn was a perfect choice for the adult ambassador.

"We picked her because we feel she could do a good job representing the adults," said Crim, who has been hosting the show for nine years. "She will come on TV and talk about her disability."

Gene Plowden, development director of easter Seals of Western Wayen County, said, "She's been a longtime client. We felt she was ideal to be the ambassador."

As for TV air-time, Ellen Kennary, telethon producer, said Carolyn will make television appearances Saturday at 11:20 p.m. and 11:40 p.m. and Sunday at 10:30 a.m. and near the end of the telethon, approximately 6 p.m.

She said Jimmie and Carolyn Raspberry will both be interviewed on camera, with a short feature story presented about Carolyn.

Clerk's party set March 12

Although tiny leprechaun and St. Patrick may not be present, Romulus City Clerk Linda Choate will stage her annual St. Patrick's Day campaign fundraiser party March 12.

She said the gala event will have dancing, live music and food for $6, with the proceeds going to Choate's campaign to re-elect her as city clerk for 1989.

"Every one in the city is invited, as long as the hall will hold them," said Choate, who has been having the St. Patrick's day fundraiser for four years. "We have a lot of fun. People have been stuck in the house for the whole winter, and this is the first opportunity they may have to go out of the house. They don't even have to wear green," she joked.

In addition to the dancing, disc jockey Tom Varnett will supply the entertainment with "a lot of variety of music." Also food and refreshments will be available.

Choate said the amount that is accumulated from the celebration "is a small amount" compared to the cost of the campaign, which, Choate said, ranges from $3,000 to $4,000. She added that people have been supportive, with about 250 people attending the party each year.

Girl nets board praise

Romulus School Board Trustee Ken Berlinn took the opportunity last week to announce to fellow school board members the selection of his daughter, Laurie, to the All-State second team for girls' basketball.

Berlinn explained that he was exceptionally proud of the honor as it was based on the votes of area coaches.

He received congratulations from the board members and district administrators.

Lambert

Lambert's salary will be increased to $20,500 once he becomes a certified police officer, according to personnel reports.

Some city officials contend that serving on the city council and being an employee of the city is a conflict of interest. Others claim that the conflict will not be created until Lambert becomes certified.

Nevertheless, Lambert has not attended the last three city council meetings or a study session of the council on Monday. Two of the three council meeting absences have been recorded as not excused, according to records.

Lambert, in past reports, said he has skirted the issue of conflict of interest by refusing to accept his paycheck from the city council. Lambert's February check, in the amount of $410.63, has been returned to the city, according to Finance Co-Director Nancy McClain. McClain could not indicate whether or not a check issued for his January council services has been cashed. (Council members are paid the first week of the month for the upcoming month.)

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry points to the city charter in defending his allegations that Lambert is creating a conflict of interest while he is in the police academy training. Raspberry said he is not trying to force the councilman out of office, but, he said, the provisions of the city charter must be upheld.

And, he said, returning a council paycheck to the city is not a defense since city officials are required, by city charter, to pay council members for their services.

"I don't see anyone going into law enforcement by violating the law. It's just a conflict of the law," Raspberry said this week. "I've known him since he was a small kid. I like him. But I think he should accept one (job) or the other."

Raspberry said Article 6, Section 6.2 of the city charter clearly defines the case.

"No member of the Council shall be eligible to participate in any retirement or pension plan, hospital, health and accident or life insurance plan or similar benefit adopted by the council for employees of the city."

Personnel Director Marilyn Radford said Lambert is not yet eligible for union affiliation. A 90-day waiting period is required before membership can begin, she said.

However, Lambert is already receiving Blue Cross health care coverage, dental insurance, life insurance and became eligible for the city pension plan Jan. 18 – his date of hire. Radford said police trainees, by state law, must be offered all benefits of a certified officer, must be paid and must be promised a job once they pass the police academy course.

Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally defended the city stand on the issue, saying that Lambert will not violate the city charter until he becomes a "certified employee."

"He is not yet a classified employee of the city. There is prohibition against being a classified employee and holding a legislative position," McAnally said. "He's not an employee. He doesn't have a position with the city yet. He is in training."

Radford said a "classified employee" is one who "is working for the city."

"(Lambert) is not certified yet. He won't work for the city until he passes the police academy," she explained.

Nevertheless, Raspberry disagrees, pointing to state attorney general's opinions and other provisions of the charter to defend his stance.

Romulus City Attorney Barry Seifman would not comment on the case because, he said, he has not been asked by city officials to investigate the matter.

"I have not been asked to investigate or issue an opinion on behalf of the council. Practically speaking, if an attorney general's opinion is to be requested, then what's the point of asking me?," Seifman said, referring to his understanding that city officials will seek an opinion from the state attorney general to decide the issue.

And opinions seem to be items given very carefully when city officials speak on the matter.

Lambert could not be reached for comment this week, after several calls to his home.

However, Councilman Randolph Gear said he had "no problem" with Lambert remaining on the council while he trains for the police department.

"I have no problem with Al being on the council as long as he was in the police academy," Gear said. "But as far as I know, you cannot hold two public offices."

Council Chairman and Mayor Pro Tem Mary Ann Banks had a similar response.

"Alan has missed several meetings. I don't know if he will be attending any others," Banks said. "But it's just an uncomfortable situation because the charter does not give council or the administration the authority to remove someone."

Councilman William Wadsworth explained, "I'm glad that he's getting what he wants (a job on the police force). It's a real gray matter right now," Wadsworth said. "I understand that he isn't getting paid from the council. Until we're told differently by the attorney, I don't think anything has been violated yet.

"I am positive once he becomes a certified police officer, he will have no choice but to step down. And I'm in favor of that."

Councilman Noah "Pete" Bergeron declined to comment on the matter. Councilman Ellis Pennington was not available for comment.

And as most council members are convinced that Lambert should step down from the council in April if he intends to continue to serve on the police force, the question of a replacement is, no doubt, eminent. According to some councilmen, former Councilman Fred "Junior" Block is currently being eyed as Lambert's replacement.

Right-to-Know group helps educate public

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

In an attempt to reduce toxic waste sites, members of the Romulus Community Right-To-Know committee not only investigates possible sites but also attempt to inform the public of the procedures to follow during a mishap.

Margaret Leduc, chairman of the Romulus Right-To-Know committee, said all facilities in Romulus must send reports to the committee identifying any waste sites on the company premises. Under the federal Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986, all communities must have a Right-To-Know committee. The Romulus committee has been meeting since November 1987, according to Leduc.

She said 27 companies in Romulus have sent reports to the committee, indicating that they have potential waste sites.

"We have to supply information to the public. People want to know what is in the community," Leduc said. "We have to show that if there are hazardous chemicals, we should know where they are and what to do about them if a problem arises."

Leduc said companies must indicate they have a potential problem if they have "chemicals above a threshold." She added that there are different categories of potential problems, including flammable materials, acids, combustible liquids, explosives and others.

The public will eventually be informed how to respond to chemical spill incidents because of these types of groups, Leduc said.

"We will show them who they can contact if a problem arises. We haven't determined how we will inform the public and businesses yet.

"It was a federal law that cities have to do this – but without (federal funding). I am aware the governor feels it is a crucial law. He has been in favor of allocating $5,000 in each local planning committee," Leduc said.

And because the law is new, there is a great deal of confusion about it, Leduc admitted.

"We are trying to figure out how to comply with the law. There are a lot of things to do that we have to take into consideration," she said. "We have to figure out how we will react with a spill and help the public."

Leduc said the group meetings, which generally are scheduled the third Tuesday of each month at 2 p.m., are open to the public, followed by a question-and-answer period. For information on the meetings, call 941-0666.

Downtown

cost estimate was not available, could be funded with federal Community Development Block Grant monies, the city share of gasoline taxes, special assessments or levying of the 2 mills in the DDA region, Solak said. In addition to straightening Goddard, the proposal would include the addition of curbs and gutters.

Gil White, president of the Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce, said taking the bends out of Goddard Road would be a positive beginning along the road to a revived downtown region. However, he said, it would also be the beginning of many needed improvements.

"I think the downtown, basically, needs money – which it doesn't have. For years and years, they have talked about doing something on Goddard Road to make it more attractive to businesses. But you're talking about a lot of money," White said. "They're talking about eliminating the bends on Goddard Road from Wayne into town to eliminate that double curve. It would do a lot to improve the appearance of Romulus."

But the plan to revamp the downtown doesn't stop there.

Also being considered are land acquisitions for additional parking in the area, development of several new, small businesses in the core business district and better promotion of the area.

"A long-range plan is needed to improve access and revitalize land used along this corridor (Goddard Road)," wrote Community Planning & Management officials in an August 1987 report to DDA members. "The DDA needs to take an active role in the promotion of improved land uses and revitalization of other uses if the downtown area is to become a real success story."

DDA members, who meet once each month, admit that none of their ideas have been set in stone just yet. They also still have to discuss ways to provide the funding to make their ideas come to life.

Hospital Authority board retains executive officers

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

Four top officers of the Peoples Community Hospital Authority were re-elected by acclamation Thursday by members of the board.

Re-elected were PCHA board Chairman Donald J. Pizzimenti, Vice Chairman Patrick Norton, Secretary Joseph Melling and Treasurer Roger Remer during the regular, February PCHA board meeting.

Also elected as members of the board executive committee were Noah Bergeron, John Kripowicz, Harold LaVassaur, Mary Lou Randolph, Terrel LeCesne and Melford Cunningham.

The officers are elected each year during the February annual meeting.

Board members also are considering expanding the Health Connector Service and hiring PCHA bus drivers for the commuter bus program, instead of contracting the service to outside sources, according to Maureen Camps, PCHA director of community relations.

Health Connector began in January 1987 on a pilot basis to provide patients with a cost-free means of transportation to one of the five PCHA hospitals – including Annapolis, Wayne; Beyer Memorial, Ypsilanti; Heritage, Taylor, Outer Drive, Lincoln Park; and Seaway, Trenton. The PCHA also operates PT Plus medical centers in Westland and Livonia.

"Patients using the service have expressed many positive comments about its convenience. Some patients indicated they would not have used the hospital had it not been for the service," stated a report on the service to board members.

Currently, 10 vans transport patients to the PCHA facilities through western Wayne County and Downriver communities from 6 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Each day, the Health Connector drivers make approximately 130 one-way trips, according to the PCHA report – 21,000 rides during the life of the program and $1.2 million in estimated generated revenues for the hospitals.

The goal is to expand the service, Camps said, and internalize the operation of it. Board members accepted the report on Health Connector but took no further action.

In other business:

• Board members approved a 2.7-percent pay increase for some salaried employees. The workers are those who did not receive a pay hike after a November 1987 contract agreement was reached with the collective bargaining unit representing union employees. The pay hike – which affects the nonunion workers – also included a one-time bonus of $350 for full-time employees and $175 to part-time employees to be paid in July.

• Approved extension of the lease agreement for the PT Plus facility, located on Wayne Road, Westland, for four more years.

Board members did not address the pending reorganization of the authority. Milton Mack, chairman of a board-appointed special study committee, said hospital authority officials are still negotiating with up to five health care agencies and/or educational institutions to become affiliated with the PCHA.

"We're still in the process of the (chief executive officer) negotiating with the various institutions in order to identify a partner," Mack said. "I would think that within 60 days we hope to have identified a partner and reached an agreement."

The drive to find a "partner" or affiliate of the PCHA stems from an October 1987 board decision. It was then that board members rejected a recommendation from a University of Michigan Hospitals report to sell the five PCHA hospitals and disband the authority. Board members opted, instead, to become associated with another agency, which would have up to a 50-percent control of the operation of the authority.

The need for reorganization of the PCHA – formed in 1947 as a quasi-public health care agency and funded by 24 member communities – was spurred by a poor financial picture, caused by declining patient stays and increased competition in the health care industry, board members say.

"We are working on the principals of the deal. Our goal is to continue to provide service and protect the assets and our employees," Mack said. "We think all three are workable."

The board meets again at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 24 in the PCHA Annex, located at the northwest corner of Annapolis and Venoy roads. All meetings are open to the public.

Road map: County officials map 1988 road repairs

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Wayne County road officials have unveiled some ambitious projects for the area, which are pending county commissioners' approval of a proposed road department budget.

The department is preparing to present a revised budget for the commissioners' approval within the next few weeks that would include, among other things, a $1 million allocation for the replacement of the Belleville Bridge.

The bridge, constructed in the 1920s, spans across the Huron River, tying the city of Belleville with Van Buren Township. The bridge recently received a new coat of paint.

"We are tying the loose ends to a proposed revision to the budget, and it must be made clear that the commissioners have not had an opportunity to look at the figures," said Alan Richardson, deputy engineer, Wayne County. "We have several major projects going on and are proposing for western Wayne County."

Richardson said replacing Belleville Bridge has been under study for some time, "and one of the obstacles is that it has a 'historic rating', therefore, the structure may not be dismantled until the paper work goes through an intense process."

Richardson said he hoped the paperwork would be completed by the end of the year and a design found that would receive approval by all those who are concerned.

Richardson pointed out several other projects that are included in the department $36 million budget. He said a $1.1 million paving project is planned for Canton Township on Haggerty Road, between Copernicus and Joy.

In Romulus, if the county receives help in the form of financing from the city, the county plans to repair Wayne Road from Wick to Goddard.

"We are presently negotiating with city officials on this project, and it appears that this should receive approval," Richardson said.

The county is also negotiating with Huron Township to pave Van Horn Road, located in the southern tip of the township.

Although there are no major projects slated for either Wayne or Westland this year, Richardson said Westland officials are looking at several projects for 1989, but "nothing concrete at this time."

Next year, the county hopes to resurface Inkster Road, from Cherry Hill to Corona, in Inkster.

For major road projects that are longer than a quarter-mile, the county usually hires a private construction company to do the job.

Pothole problem a fact of county life

Many believe that the redbreasted Robin is the first sign of spring.

But ask any motorist, and he would probably say that the best indication that spring is just around the corner is "the pothole."

Potholes, nature's way of keeping man and machine alert and awake, have been with us since the invention of the wheel. And the two are as incompatible as snow in July.

And don't think those omnipresent metal-devouring holes that seem to appear with the late February thaw and the March winds will go the way of the "Dodo bird."

Although there are some who are trying to come up with a better formula for concrete and cement, the best thus far is coldpatch, which leaves the roads looking like a quilt created by an angry artist.

"We are continuously reviewing the types of material we are using for patching the roadways," noted Patrick Hogan, deputy director of the Wayne County Department of Public Works. "But it doesn't appear potholes will disappear from the surface of the roads in the near future.

"There have been some advances in the area, but, as it stands now, we have been able to decrease the amount (of coldpatch) needed to get the job done in Wayne County.

"For example, several years ago the county used between 10 to 12 thousand tons of coldpatch for road repairs. Today, because of better material utilized, it's down to three to four thousand (tons)."

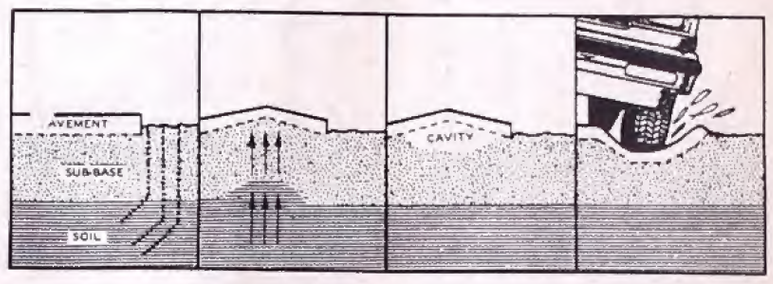
When considering that Wayne County is responsible for repairs to 1,900 miles of county and state freeways and roads, there are tremendous savings. This year, the county has allocated approximately $2 million to patch up those menacing potholes.

The county has a $20 million contract with the Michigan Department of Transportation to maintain state roads within the county geographical area.

At any given time, the county may have 600 workers filling in the potholes, according to Hogan. The county is responsible for 700 miles of primary roads and an equal number of miles of freeways. "We get complaints and sometimes photos of these potholes asking us why they haven't been repaired," Hogan said. "We try to get our crews out there and solve the problem as soon as we can."

– By Tom Mooradian

ANATOMY OF A POTHOLE



Potholes begin after snow or rain seeps into the soil below the road surface. This moisture freezes when temperatures drop below freezing, causing the ground to expand, rise and push the pavement up. Then, when temperatures rise, the ground returns to normal level before the pavement does, creating a cavity, or pocket between the ground and the pavement. When cars and trucks drive over this cavity, the surface cracks and falls into the hollow space. Thus another pothole is born.

Here are some GLAUCOMA FACTS
Glaucoma is a condition in which pressure created by the fluid within the eyes, called aqueous humor, builds to an abnormally high level. If the intraocular pressure remains elevated, damage can occur to the optic nerve resulting in impaired vision. There are two main types of glaucoma: chronic and acute (also known as narrow angle glaucoma).
Chronic glaucoma is the most common type and is a painless condition. People are often unaware of this problem because visual loss is gradual. Usually there are no warning signs or symptoms and by the time visual problems occur, irreversible damage may have already developed.
Acute glaucoma is less common than the chronic form. Acute glaucoma is marked by severe pain in or around the eye, decreased vision, nausea, and vomiting. This condition is considered an ocular emergency and frequently laser surgery is required to alleviate the pressure.
Early detection is the best way to prevent permanent visual loss. Regular eye examinations are encouraged, especially if you are over the age of 40 or have a family member with glaucoma. Glaucoma can be controlled with daily use of medication and/or laser treatment.

Market drifts into dullness

ron ferenczi

The Federal Reserve Board Open Market Committee met last week, and Fed Chairman Ala Greenspan testified to Congress The financial markets were looking for any indication of the Fed's future policy.

Alan Greenspan may have misspoken during testimony last week. He indicated that by adding small amounts of liquidity to the market, the Fed could lower interest rates. This may not happen.

The market may want more convincing evidence, such as a discount rate cut. At this point, I think a discount rate cut is out of the range of possibility.

For this week, interest rates will continue to be flat, with a slight upward bias. Bond prices will move in narrow ranges, with a downward price bias. Gold and silver prices continue to be under selling pressure.

We may see a replay of the performance of last week. Short-term traders are not eager to participate as buyers or sellers. They may try to step aside and watch for developments.

Intermediate-term traders, for the past several weeks, have been supporting the marking, and it appears, this week, they will continue that action.

Long-term traders have moved to the sidelines and will not be active.

This week, I see the market opening mixed to down. Any softness in the market will get buying support from secondary issues, which continue to improve as the weeks go by. The secondary issues have added stability to a rather dull market.

The market will change direction several times, but it generally will end drifting, with no meaningful enthusiasm.

Daniel Smith and nephew Andy Roobol are trying to find ways to spend Smith's profit-sharing check before it arrives next Tuesday. Smith is an enginner at the Ford Wayne Assembly plant – and one of the proud recipients of a profit-sharing, divident check of at least $3,700. The two looked over the selection of cars at Jack Demmer Ford, Wayne, and eyed the Probe as a possible use for their "pennies from heaven." Demmer Ford is also trying to entice the Ford Workers by staging a March 12 sales event for Ford workers and retirees. ANP photo by Ann Grimes/staff photographer

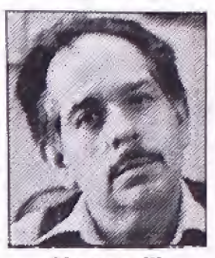
Workers see profit sharing as reward for earlier cuts

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Following a record-breaking year of earnings by the Ford Motor Co., hourly workers will be taking home their share of the profits next Tuesday – with checks averaging $3,700.

Ford reported earnings of $4.6 billion in 1987, an increase of 41 percent above the previous year, when workers averaged $2,100 each in profit-sharing checks.



Hermosillo

Jefferson

According to Domingo Hermosillo, financial secretary and treasurer of UAW Local 898, the initial reaction of the hourly workers at the Rawsonville Plant was "surprise that it is so much."

However, Hermosillo added, workers don't look at profit-sharing as a gift. Instead, he said, they feel they are entitled to share in the profits of the good years after granting concessions to the company during the recession years. Hermosillo recalled that wages were frozen in 1982 and workers did not receive a pay raise for four years.

The union official believes the profit-sharing agreement will continue to be part of future Ford-UAW contracts "because it is working so well." Hermosillo believes the company gains an additional benefit from the profit-sharing because many of the workers use the money to purchase new cars.

Hermosillo said many of the workers he has talked with have earmarked their checks for the purchase of a new car or paying off one they have already purchased. As for himself, Hermosillo said, his wife has some plans for the extra dollars.

Belleville resident Pamela Lipford plans to use her profit-sharing check toward the purchase of a new Escort GT or a Mustang. Lipford, who works at the Ford-Rawsonville Plant, said she has been eyeing a new car for some time, but decided to wait until she received her profit-sharing check.

Although new vehicles – Mustangs, Escort GTs and the F-series pickups – have caught the eye of many Ford workers, Hermosillo has observed that an increasing number of workers choose to put part of their profit-sharing checks into a stock or savings program. He said that a month before the checks are distributed, workers have an opportunity to authorize a portion of their check for stocks, money market certificates or a tax efficiency savings program (similar to an I.R.A.).

Romulus resident Janet Jefferson and her husband, Otis, both employees at the Ford-Rawsonville Plant, decided to save rather than to spend their checks. Janet placed 80 percent of her profit-sharing check in money market certificates and purchased stock with the remaining 20 percent, while Otis chose to put all of his check in money market certificates.

Although it would be difficult to find a Ford hourly worker who is not enthusiastic about the profit-sharing plan, former Local 898 president Ray Overall recalled that many workers were skeptical about the plan when it was first introduced. Workers averaged $400 in profit sharing during the first year (1983), $2,000 in 1984, $1,200 in 1985 and $2,100 in 1986. Overall noted that as the size of the checks increased, so did the enthusiasm of the workers.

"The only complaint we hear is that the standard deductions are taken out of the check, which could reduce the net amount by one-third," Overall said. "I put my check into the tax efficiency savings program so that I can pay the taxes on it after I retire and I'm in a different tax bracket."

Retailers hope to entice check recipients

At the same time Ford Motor Co. workers are receiving profit-sharing checks, many local businesses are trying to capitalize on the profit-sharing dividends.

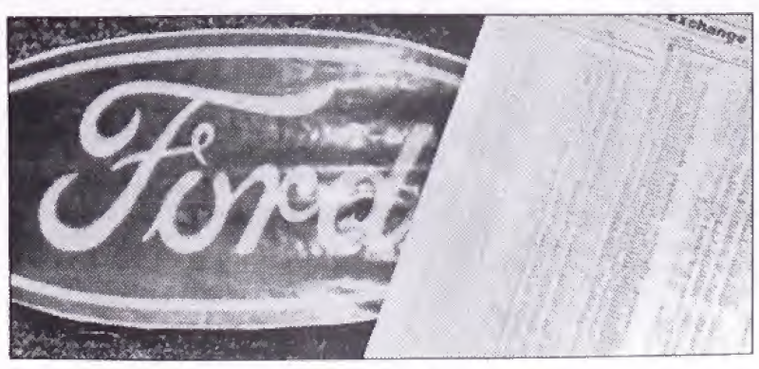
"Ford checks around here are almost as universal as tax-return checks," said Vince Law Jr., co-owner of Law's Auto Sales, Wayne.

Law said his company ran an advertisement last week that brought attention to Ford products.

"Being so close to the factory, we have emphasized having Fords on the lot," he said.

Law's Auto Sales is located on Michigan Avenue, a few miles from the Wayne Ford Assembly and Michigan Truck Plant.

"I've heard a couple of customers say they were planning to use their money to buy a car. But no sales have been attributed to it yet," Law said.



The Ford Motor Co. symbol has been a pleasant site on the stock exchange pages during 1987

Steve Visotsky, sales manager at Jack Demmer Ford, said his company is planning to do extra advertising to attract the Ford worker dollars.

A special sales promotion will be staged March 12. The dealership normally isn't open on Saturdays but will be that day for Ford workers and retirees, Visotsky said.

The promotion will feature refreshments and possibly a raffle.

"It will be a day to say 'congratulations' to Ford workers and retirees," he said.

Jack Demmer officals have already noticed people interested in buying cars with their checks.

"A lot of people have already been by," he said.

Some workers plan to use their checks for luxury items or special trips.

Debbie Dillingham, a travel agent at Adventure Travel Service, said she has booked people to Florida who said they were using their profit-sharing checks.

"We've possibly had more – they just haven't mentioned it," she said.

At Leo's Jewelers, on Michigan Avenue, Wayne, Ford workers receive 10 percent off their purchases to entice them to spend their money on jewelry, according to Susan Zuckerman, co-owner.

"At Christmas time, they were saying they were using their profit-sharing checks. They would charge with us and then pay it off with the check," Zuckerman said.

But at LeRoy's jewelry, in Westland Center, Sales Manager Dale Bishop said he hasn't noticed workers using the checks as much on jewelry as they did last year.

"I think most people try to spend it on cars or save it," Bishop said.

'Other' auto workers not sour on Ford deal

By BARBARA ALBERT
ANP Staff Writer

A few area General Motors workers are disappointed they did not get a profit sharing check this year, but they are hopeful that the situation will turn around.

Workers at Ford Motor Co. were rewarded for a profitable year with profit sharing checks in excess of $3,000. The other automobile companies were not quite as lucky.

"I would have liked to get a check, but maybe it will be our turn next year," said William Katcher.

Katcher believes things go in cycles and while Ford is on top right now, GM will get a turn soon.

> "Currently each automobile company uses its own formula for determining profit sharing for employees. There have been recommendations that next year all of the companies use the same formula.

David Dillingham who works at the GM plant in Ann Arbor said updated GM plants might help turn things around, but in the end the public buying GM cars is the only thing that will put them back on top.

"The American people are realizing that foreign cars aren't all they are cracked up to be," said Allen Bennetts who works at GM headquarters. "They will come back to American cars soon."

Currently each automobile company uses its own formula for determining profit sharing for employees. There have been recommendations that next year all of the companies use the same formula.

"I don't know if it will help or not," Bennetts said. "In the end they (the companies) are going to do whatever they want."

None of these men were upset that General Motors executives will receive bonuses this year even though profits were low.

Dillingham said General Motors determines the executives' salaries with the bonus in mind.

In the end, Dillingham, Katcher and Bennetts all would have made use of a $3,000 check. They understand however, that in order to have profit sharing the company has to turn a profit.

Opinion

It is a matter of self defense

He's been arrested for burglary three times since November and never served a day in jail.

A trio of 18-year-olds caught red-handed vandalizing a local car dealer have never seen the inside of a courtroom.

And drugs for sale from known dealers have become far more commonplace since these entrepreneurs no longer fear the legal system in Wayne County.

Sound far fetched? Unfortunately, it isn't. It is the situation as it exists in Wayne County today when law enforcement officials have nowhere to send the criminals they find and arrest.

The Wayne County crackdown on crime is a terrific effort. Police officers at every level are candid in their admiration for the efforts to stop drug dealers and put crack houses out of commission, but they lament the nearly constant reoccurrence of crime by the same individuals who should be in jail for previous offenses.

The fact that there is no room in the criminal justice system in Wayne County to house prisoners has become the greatest advantage those who would break the law have. Most never see the inside of a jail following arrest, and many don't ever see a judge for arraignment, simply because there is no place to house them while awaiting such action and no place to send them should they be convicted.

Guilty or not, they are out walking the streets, scoffing at the system that purports to demand law and order and require a punishment for crimes against their fellow citizens. It is, to these people, perfectly acceptable to commit crimes, for there is no punishment to deter their actions.

While arrests have grown, nearly 3,000 prisoners were released early from jail in the last 18 months. More than 650 prisoners were released early from Wayne County jail since Nov. 1 because of overcrowding. Several hundred non-assaultive prisoners – vandals, burglars and car thieves – have never been incarcerated simply because there is no room for them.

And while it is an ugly situation, many politicians and elected officials shy away from the only solution possible at this time for fear of the risk to their political careers. Funds must be provided for jails, and those funds can only come from taxpayers.

A group of district and circuit court judges has proposed a tax increase to Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara for the construction of more jail space. In their recommendations, the judges cite their frustration in sentencing repeat offenders who come before them and finding that the criminals are out on the street before the judge leaves the bench for the day.

It is a serious situation and one that threatens the personal safety of each of us. It also threatens the sanctity of our homes and our ability to feel safe and secure behind our own doors.

While we agree that taxes are very high, we also know that the price each of our local citizens will pay is exorbitant. We must find money, even at the risk of a taxing increase, to fund our criminal justice system. There must be a punishment associated with the commission of a crime. That is the only weapon we have to protect ourselves, our homes and our children.

If crime continues to escalate, and it will, and we do nothing, can we expect to continue to live in the manner we do? If a tax increase will provide the tools our law enforcement officials need to keep crime from our doorstep, do politicians really think area residents won't support that step?

We think our local citizens will vote overwhelmingly for more funding for the jails if the facts are brought to them and if they are informed of the risks they take by allowing the present situation to continue.

They will not be willing victims.

Citizen wants end to brutality

To The Editor:

Citizen claims police brutality (Feb. 10, 1988, Romulus Roman) "Can of worms." Whose can? The police departments. I'm sure there are more incidents which we never hear about.

I felt Lucille Aldson was treated very unfairly. The way to stop future incidents from happening is for every Romulus resident to appear in court with Lucille Aldson. Her court papers probably say "The People of Romulus versus Lucille Aldson." And we are the people.

Romulus firemen deserve honors

To The Editor:

Attending the Romulus award ceremonies at city hall Feb. 22 was a real disappointment.

Mayor Beverly McAnally did a fine job - except at the very end. The police department received many individual, as well as group, commendations, but the fire department only received one - lumped all together.

I feel that these men who give up so much of their own time and who are there when the city needs them have been slighted. My nephew is one of them, and I know of what I am speaking. I have seen him go without sleep or rest for 24 to 36 hours just so he can be there when he is needed by others.

He was one of those who spent those long hours at the airport last fall when Flight 255 crashed. I did not see any type of recognition for these men at the award ceremony. The police are only doing what they get paid for when they perform their duties.

I would like to see Romulus give more credit to the fire department for the fine job they are doing.

Royal treatment is appreciated

To The Editor:

To all of the merchants in the "Crazy Days of Wayne", I want to say "thank you"!

I was picked as 1988 Queen of Heart Crazy Days, and what a wonderful feeling!

My husband and I were picked up at 10 a.m. Saturday morning and for four hours chauffeured around in a limousine all over Wayne to pick up a beautiful gift from each store. Everyone was so friendly. They really went all out to make me Queen of Heart for the day.

Thanks again! It's great to live in Wayne!

Tree clippings were requested

To The Editor:

This replay is in response to the letter written by Harold Host, of Westland, regarding the dumping of tree clippings in the parking lot at Elliott School.

Please be aware that I had the chief of police, Fred Dansby contact Dr. Jose Muller, principle at Elliot School. Chief Dansby was informed by Dr. Muller that he had requested the tree clippings to be left on the school ground for the students' use in a school project early this spring.

Chief Dansby contacted Host and advised him of this. The request by Dr. Muller was appropriate, and there was no violation of any city ordinance as a result of the request by the Elliott school principal.

Prepare before traveling

By BARBARA ALBERT
ANP Staff Writer

The novelty of crisp snow and the winter chill have worn away. Now, we are left with dreary, gray days and disgusting black slush.

The tropical sun and warm climates call to more people now more than any other time of the year. Favorite tourist spots became even more popular January through March. And while it's the time most of us want to go on vacation, it's also the most hectic time to travel.

If you have a sudden whim to travel to a hot spot and want to leave right away, most travel agents wish you "good luck."

Laura Watt, of Camelot Travel, Livonia, said she could probably get you on a trip almost anywhere if you are prepared to pay with your first-born child.

Trying to make reservations for a cruise or for a trip to Florida between now and Easter would be virtually impossible, she said.

Most agents agree that a trip to Florida can only be arranged at this late date if the lodging accommodations are with a family member or friends. Most beachfront Florida hotels are booked through Spring Break, travel officials said.

So, the first tip for sun seekers is to plan early. In other words – if you haven't started planning yet, you might as well enjoy the Michigan thaw.

If you have already managed to make plans and have the time off from work, travel agents pass along a few tips for the peak-season sun seeker.

The best times to fly, according to Watt, are Monday evening and Thursday morning. Staying a Saturday night will guarantee a cheaper airfare, as well.

Next, make sure all of the necessary paperwork is in order. When traveling outside of the United States, travelers must apply for a passport or renew a defunct one. This can be accomplished at certain post office branches or, in some cases, through the mail. Processing passports can take several weeks, so be prepared for the delay.

"We can rush things through using express mail, but it's not advisable," said Mary Ellen Rogacki, of the AAA Travel Agency, Livonia.

Watt recommends obtaining boarding passes at the same time the tickets are ordered. Most travel agents will do this automatically. Having your boarding passes in hand will save a lot of waiting-in-line time at the airport.

At any rate, arriving at the airport early and confirming flights ahead of time are sure to make the trip more relaxing.

Many agents now recommend that when planning a cruise, travelers should arrive at the point of departure a day before the ship leaves.

"If the ship leaves from Miami, you might want to arrive in Miami a day before the ship is scheduled to leave," Rogacki said. "That way, if your flight is delayed at all, you're not so rushed."

All area travel agents remind Tropics-bound customers that casual dress is the key.

"Dress is very casual on cruises and in most tropical places," Rogacki said.

She added that women might want to take along a skirt for a night out on the town, but men should leave the jacket and tie at home.

Shopping at quaint open-air markets is a favorite pastime for tourists. Rogacki said to watch prices closely.

"Sometimes, especially during the peak seasons, you may find better buys at hotel gift shops," she said.

For those of us paled by the bleakness of winter, remember not to stay out in the sun too long at first. Sunscreen should definitely be on the list of things to pack.

ANNUAL EXODUS OF THE
SNOW BIRDS

• By Barbara Albert •

This is the season for the annual flight of the snowbird to destinations brimming with sunshine and salt water.

January through March is considered the peak travel season. That means travelers can expect to pay a few extra dollars for their vacations and also expect to run into a few more tourists along the way.

Area travel agents say the people of western Wayne County, in general, travel to the same places as those who live in other parts of the county.

A representative of Joan Anderson Travel Service Inc., of Detroit, said folks in these parts book more cruises than people from Farmington Hills and Birmingham. Other than that, however, no matter where you are from, getting to someplace warm is the only requirement.

Agents said certain travel spots are popular year after year. But a few new sunshine paradises have also been born.

Florida, of course, has always been a favorite destination for snowbirds – especially snowbirds with families, senior citizen snowbirds and, of course, the collegiate variety.

"There are a lot more family things to do in Florida, and it is not as expensive," said Zuzana Morelli, a representative of Around the World Travel, Farmington Hills.

The Bahamas is also a favorite for families and senior citizens.

The temperature in the Bahamas is similar to that in Miami, which is warmer than in Detroit but not necessarily enough for the sun-worshipper's liking.

"The Bahamas and Florida are for people who just want to go to some place warmer – but not necessarily to lay out in the sun," said Mary Ellen Rogacki, of AAA Travel Agency, Livonia.

Laura Watt, of Camelot Travel, Livonia warns Florida- and Bahama-bound travelers to expect a crowd.

"Some people, like kids headed to Fort Lauderdale and Daytona Beach, want the crowds," she said.

Cruises anywhere have become very popular to people who have only a short time and little money to spend.

Rogacki said a typical Caribbean cruise will cost between $1,100 and $1,200.

"People feel really safe with cruises because everything is included in the one price," said Watt.

The price of a cruise includes airfare, transportation to the docks, food and entertainment. Tourists also like the idea of traveling from island to island at night so they feel they aren't missing anything.

Trips to the Caribbean islands are more costly, but they are also very popular for people who just want to spend a week lounging in the sun.

The lower Caribbean islands, such as Antigua and Aruba, have become more popular recently. Agents say a unique mixture of cultures attracts people to Antigua.

Mexico is really catching on with sun seekers, as well. The exchange rate makes the destination especially attractive, according to the travel experts.

"A trip to Mexico will cost between $750 and $1,200 per person, and that includes airfare and seven nights in a hotel," Rogacki said.

Cancun and Acapulco are the most popular destinations for those headed to Mexico. Both spots guarantee sunny days and warm weather.

Australia and New Zealand are catching the interest of those with a lot of money and a lot of vacation time. Watt said one almost needs three weeks to justify a trip "down under." She has booked several excursions for senior citizens.

All travel agents agree that Hawaii is losing ground as a hot spot for snowbirds. Most believe it's the stories of over-developement that frighten tourists away.

Those looking for a more secluded spot might want to try some of the islands off the coast of South America. Most are very remote and guarantee a restful vacation. If traveling to these islands, however, be prepared to spend time on the beach – that's all there is to do.

Agents from Joan Anderson Travel Services, Detroit, can also book you on a trip that is sure to shock your neighbors. They can arrange a day trip to the South Pole. Of course, you do have to stay overnight some place else before reaching your final destination.

And if you can't go . . .

It's time to be honest.

Most of us would rather be some place else right now. That some place is surrounded by water, covered with white sand, lush flora and, above all, has a temperature nearing 80 degrees.

Unfortunately, most people's checkbooks won't accommodate a trip to paradise.

Those of us who are cash poor will just have to use our imagination and bring paradise to western Wayne County.

Here's how:

- A suntan – that's the reason most people flock to the beaches. If a bronze body is all you want, check out the neighborhood tanning salon. For about $5 a session you can look like you spent a week in Aruba.
- If you really want to get in the mood, skip the beer tonight and order a tall drink with plenty of fruit and umbrellas instead. This will help conjure up images of blue skies and warm breezes. If it doesn't, slip a little extra booze in the fruit juice.
- The next best thing to being in paradise would be to bring the warm temperatures here. The weatherman isn't quite ready to oblige, so we will have to take matters into our own hands.

One method would be to turn the thermostat to high in your home and take a nap on the nearest heating vent. For those who prefer damp heat, however, running a hot shower in the bathroom and closing the door would be the best bet.

- There is nothing quite like wiggling your toes in the sand.

Cooking

Presenting the $40,000 masterpiece

just desserts

sue willett

A woman from Minnesota just won $40,000 for a chocolate praline cake recipe in the Pillsbury Bake Off. The next time anyone implies that cooking isn't big business or that culinary skills are commonplace, that will be a statistic to have handy to cram into the empty space between their ears.

While this chocolate cake sounds wonderful, there were other recipes from the contest that were more than a little intriguing. This one in particular caught my attention, and as soon as I have a day or so with absolutely nothing else to do, I may try it. In the meantime, I thought I'd share it with our readers just to demonstrate the lengths some of us will go to just for that ultimate dessert. A Wisconsin woman went home with $10,000 for this creation, and from the sounds of it, the money was well-earned indeed.

RASPBERRY-CHOCOLATE TRUFFLE PIE

Crust:

15-ounce package Pillsbury All Ready Pie Crusts
1 teaspoon flour

Sauce:

4 cups frozen raspberries without syrup, thawed
3/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar

Filling:

1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated)
2/3 cup whipping cream
5 ounces (5 squares) semisweet chocolate, melted
4 ounces (4 squares) unsweetened chocolate, melted
2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons raspberry-flavored liqueur
2 tablespoons amaretto

Topping:

1 1/3 cups whipping cream
2 Tablespoons powdered sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
Chocolate curls, if desired-
Whole raspberries, if desired

Heat oven to 450 degrees. Prepare pie crust according to package directions for unfilled one-crust pie using 9-inch pie pan. Refrigerate remaining crust for later use. Bake at 450 degrees for 9 to 11 minutes or until light golden brown. Cool completely.

To prepare sauce, press 4 cups raspberries through strainer to make 1 cup puree. Discard seeds. In small saucepan, combine sugar and cream of tartar. Blend well. Stir in puree and mix well. Over medium heat, bring mixture to a boil. Boil 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Cover and refrigerate.

In medium heavy saucepan, combine condensed milk and 2/3 cup whipping cream. Blend well. Over medium heat, bring mixture to a boil. Remove from heat. Cool for 5 minutes. In food processor bowl with metal blade, combine milk mixture and melted chocolates. Process for 5 to 10 seconds. Add raspberry-flavored liqueur and amaretto. Process 5 seconds. Pour blended mixture into large bowl. Set over ice. Stir for 5 to 7 minutes or until mixture is cool. Beat mixture on hightest speed for 2 to 3 minutes or until soft peaks form. Pour into cooled, baked crust. Refrigerate about 1 hour or until firm.

In small bowl, beat 1 1/3 cups whipping cream until soft peaks form. Add powdered sugar and vanilla and beat until stiff peaks form. Spread over cooled filling. Garnish with chocolate curls and whole raspberries. Refrigeratae until ... ne. Remove from refrigerator 1 hour before serving. Serve with raspberry sauce. Store in refrigerator.

Microwaves are fantastic, and TV dinners are great once in a while. But I still believe everyone needs a good meal – a filling meal at that, not this fast-food stuff.

– Laura Cole

STUFF IT | Hungarian heritage means recipes take time – but are worth the wait

By BETH SUNDRLA
ANP Staff Writer

The recipes may seem complicated, but Laura Cole was raised on Hungarian cooking and enjoys working in the kitchen.

"I've always liked to cook," she said. "I watched my mother and my grandmother."

Cole, who is married to Robert Cole, a biology teacher at Romulus High School, has lived in Romulus all of her life.

Both sets of her grandparents emigrated from Hungary and settled in the Detroit area.

Cole said she was raised on Hungarian culture and food.

"I always had homecooked meals," she explained.

Even now, she cooks every day, despite having a full-time job.

"Most of the recipes (from Hungary) were designed by the old-timers – when they spent all day in the kitchen," Cole said.

"With a full-time job, it's hard to spend all day there," she said.

Cole works for Romulus City Clerk Linda Choate as an administrative secretary. She also takes minutes for the Romulus City Council meetings.

"I prepare three, full-course meals on the weekend," she said, with a laugh. "But I have to thank my mother, Olga, for teaching me to make these types of dishes."

Some of her recipes have been handed down in her family for generations, including stuffed cabbage, kalacs and chicken paprikas.

"Microwaves are fantastic, and TV dinners are great once in a while. But I still believe everyone needs a good meal – a filling meal at that, not this fast-food stuff," she said.

Cole hasn't had formal training in cooking. In junior high, she took a cooking course and failed because she wouldn't use measuring cups and spoons.

"My family didn't use those types of utensils," she said. "I'm 'a pinch of this and a dash of that' cook."

In preparing Hungarian food, a cook must be patient, Cole said.

"It's time consuming – especially with noodles and dumplings," she said.

Hungarian food is not spicy and not bland. "It's middle of the road," Cole said. "It's a type of food 99 percent of the people like."

The recipes call for a lot of paprika, but are not difficult, Cole said.

And, with a little practice, even the novice can master the recipes, she said.

"Every cook has her own variations. There are things I cook that my mother doesn't. My husband is Irish so I try to pick up a little of that type of cooking.

"I can cook anything from something simple to something complicated. And I like to experiment," she said.

Her tip for novice cooks is to start with a basic cookbook that gives many instructions.

"But don't be afraid to 'experiment," she said. "Your cooking is unlimited. The possibilities in cooking are endless."

Some of her family favorites are:

GOULASH
Gulyas

1 1/2 pounds boneless pot roast of beef, chuck or blade
2 cups meat broth
4 slices bacon
1 1/2 cups chopped onion
1 tablespoon paprika
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
1/8 teaspoon marjoram
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
3/4 cup dry white wine
1/2 cup water
1(4 cup all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon butter
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon water

Set out a Dutch oven or a heavy, 3-quart sauce pot with a tight-fitting cover.

Cut meat into 1 1/2-inch pieces on wooden board. Prepare meat broth and set aside.

Dice bacon and place in a sauce pan. Cook slowly, stirring and turning frequently, until bacon is lightly browned. Remove bacon with slotted spoon from sauce pan to small bowl and set aside.

Add onion to the bacon fat in the sauce pan and cook over medium heat until onion is almost tender, stirring occasionally.

Remove onion with slotted spoon to bowl containing bacon and set aside.

Add meat to the bacon fat and slowly brown on all sides, stirring occasionally. Sprinkle paprika, salt, pepper, marjoram evenly over the meat. Stir in bacon-onion mix and add green pepper.

Slowly pour in the meat broth and white wine. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover sauce pan and simmer 2 to 2 1/2 hours or until meat is tender when pierced with a fork. Remove meat with slotted spoon to hot serving dish. Thicken cooking liquid if desired.

To thicken liquid, pour into 1-pint screw-top jar, add 1/2 cup water and sprinkle with flour.

Cover jar tightly and shake until mixture is well blended. Slowly pour one-half of the mixture into sauce pan, stirring constantly. Bring to boiling. Gradually add only what is needed of remaining flour-water mixture for consistency desired. Bring to boiling after each addition. After final addition, cook 3 to 5 minutes longer.

Melt butter in small skillet. Remove from heat. Blend in rest of paprika. Stir in water and immediately add to liquid in sauce pan, stirring until well blended. Pour this sauce over meat. Serve. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CHICKEN PAPRIKAS
Csirkepaprikas

1 chopped onion
4 tablespoons shortening
1 tablespoon paprika
1 teaspoon black pepper
2 tablespoons salt
4 to 5 pounds chicken, cut in pieces
1 1/2 cups water
1/2 pint sour cream

Saute onion in shortening; add seasonings and chicken; saute about 10 minutes. Add water. Cover and simmer slowly until chicken is tender. Remove chicken. Add sour cream to pan drippings and mix well. Add dumplings. Arrange chicken on top. Heat through and serve. Serves 4.

DUMPLINGS
Gomboc

3 beaten eggs
3 cups flour
3 tablespoons sour cream
1 tablespoon salt
1/2 cup water

Mix all ingredients together and beat with a spoon. Drop batter by teaspoonful into boiling salted water. Cook about 10 minutes. Drain and rinse with cold water. Add to chicken paprikas.

Sports

'Tony wrestled with great technical execution...with confidence. Like a champion. He placed third a year ago and since last March he's been headed for that one goal - the state title. He truly deserved to win it all...'

Tony Venturini

Paul Nowicki

'Paul went head-to-head with an awesome wrestler and never gave an inch. He is a real phenomenon. I believe that he will be the heavyweight to watch in the state next year.'

Venturini captures state wrestling title

The emotion. The feeling. The magic of winning the highest award the state of Michigan has to offer a high school athlete - a state title - finally belongs to Romulus High senior Tony Venturini.

Venturini, who came within one victory of winning the Class A state wrestling crown at 98-pounds a year ago, would not let the elusive crown slip from his head this year as he defeated number 1 ranked Denny Rapal in the finals of the state tournament staged Saturday in Battle Creek.

Venturini destroyed his final 98-pound opponent of his high school career, Rapal, of West Bloomfield, 9-4, to earn a unique place in Romulus's history. He joins Brad Smith as the only wrestlers in the school's history to win state wrestling titles.

Smith accomplished the feat in the mid-1970s.

Venturini's victory at state brought the curtains down on a sterling senior and overall wrestling career. He finished the 1987-88 season with a 47-2 record after a 52-2 season as a junior.

Teammate Paul Nowicki, a junior, finished fourth at state, and was the only other area grappler who earned a state medal this year.

Romulus Coach Wayne Schimming said he was "proud and happy that both Tony and Paul wrestled so well in the state tournament."

"We're especially excited that Tony won the state championship,"Schimming continued. "I have had my placers at the state tournament but never a champion until now."

Schimming completed his 13th year as head coach at Romulus.

'Tony wrestled with great technical execution, and displayed the confidence of a champion. He has been headed for this goal since last March. This was no fluke. He deserved to win," Schimming said.

Venturini launched his bid for the coveted crown with a 3:06 pin over first-round opponent Soren Murphy of Walled Lake Center. He then clashed with Hazel Park's highly touted T. J. Baughman who had brought with him several impressive tournament victories into the match. It took Venturini only 3:55 to shatter T.J.'s dreams of a state title.

Then came a tough Tony Hill of Flint Kearsley, who also was touted as a possible state champ. Tony ousted him in an 8-1 decision and that set up the clash with Rapal who was favored to take the state title. Venturini had other plans and earned a 9-4 victory over the West Bloomfield grappler who was fortunate he wasn't pinned.

Nowicki will return next year.

And some believe he is the heir-apparent to the heavyweight crown even though he lost to Clio's Scott Brotheston, also a junior who went on to take the state title.

Nowicki also didn't waste any time in the first round as he won via a fall at 4:35 over Grosse Pointe North's David Vandale. In the second round Nowicki got by Grand Rapids Union's Art Droski, 7-4, which set up the quarterfinal match with Brotherston who pinned the Romulus wrestler.

Paul came back and defeated Davison's Rich Loren 10-1 and, in a rematch with Droski for the third place medal, Nowicki found himself struggling. He eventually lost a cliffhanger, 4-3.

As a junior, Nowicki has amassed a 45-5 record.

"Paul did an outstanding job to place fourth in the state," Schimming noted. "In his first year as a varsity performer he proved to be a phenomenon. He went head-to-head with Brotherston, who placed second and didn't quit. I believe Paul is the one you'll have to watch next year."

Romulus wins in new conference

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

The South Central Conference basketball season is history. Ypsilanti owns the 1988 crown, and Romulus is at the other end of the spectrum, last place.

But before the last page of the SCC season was written, Coach Danny Henry and his Eagles wrote a couple of interesting pages of their own. They managed to win their first conference game in their new league at the expense of Ann Arbor Huron.

In fact, before clashing with Adrian in the season's league finale, the Eagles had worked up a three-game winning streak.

But, before another word is written, Romulus cage fans should take note: Because Warren DeLaSalle captured the Catholic League championship the scheduled game with Romulus tonight has been cancelled.

"The state allows a team to play 21 games prior to the state play-offs," explained Fred Coleman, Romulus athletic director, "and since DeLaSalle has played its allotted number of games it is not permitted to play another (game) until the play-offs."

Coleman said to fill the void Romulus will play Southgate Aquinas 7 p.m. Thursday at home. Romulus is not scheduled to play again until Wednesday, March 9 when the Eagles take on the winner of the Wayne Memorial - Taylor Kennedy game at 8 p.m. in the semifinal round of the Class A district play-offs at Wayne. (See Related Story on this Page).

Adrian ended the Eagles' three-game winning streak Friday night 69-44. The loss left Romulus with a 1-7 conference and a 5-13 overall record.

Without their leading scorer and rebounder, Brent Bonam, in the lineup - Bonam had sustained an ankle injury - the Eagles managed to keep abreast of Adrian for the first eight minute trailing by only three (14-11) the end of the period. With Scott Riley hurting Romulus from the field, Adrian built up a 34-27 half time and a 50-35 advantage for three-quarters and was never seriously challenged after the half.

The Eagles could do with some extra practice at the foul line where they only cashed in on 10 of 23 opportunities. Riley's 29 points stood up for the evening's high.

Romulus managed to edge Ann Arbor Huron 46-45 as the Eagles, led by Willie Maull's 17 points, outscored their rivals 17-11 to seal the victory.

It was a low-scoring first half as Romulus saw a 8-7 first period lead vanish at half time, 20-14. The Eagles outscored their SCC rivals 15-14 and 17-11 the last two quarters.

'March madness'

Preps shoot for titles

Oh, how the mighty have fallen.

Not only did defending Wolverine "A" Conference basketball champs, Wayne Memorial, lose back-to-back conference games to Belleville and Trenton, but Coach Chuck Henry's Zebras also have blurred the Class A district play-offs picture.

Ranked among the top five teams in the Metro West Area until their sudden demise, Wayne had been established as the pre-tournament title favorite. In fact, most were willing to concede the title to Wayne.

Not now. As "March Madness", that perennial aplomb for the Michigan High School Athletic Association's play-off period rolls around, no one is ready to concede anything to anyone.

Romulus, the defending district champ which has won the last two district classics at Wayne, Belleville, Taylor Truman, Taylor Kennedy and even Wayne, if it finds itself within the next week, could emerge with the title.

"Anyone of the five teams can win it," said Dan Henry, Romulus coach who is not related to his colleague at Wayne. "But Belleville right now looks like it has the momentum. It should be interesting to see what happens over there (at Wayne)," Henry added.

What is for sure, however, is that at 7 p.m. on Monday, Wayne takes to the home court to face Taylor Kennedy. In the second round, scheduled for Wednesday, Belleville gets into the act when the Tigers play Taylor Truman at 6 p.m. In the nightcap at 8 p.m., Romulus begins the defense of its crown against the winner of the Wayne-Taylor Kennedy game.

The championship at Wayne will be decided at 7 p.m. on Friday, March 11.

The district champ will join three others at the regional tournament to be staged the following week at Eastern Michigan University.

In the meantime, Coach George Thompson and the Inkster Vikings will travel to Redford Bishop Borgess in their quest for a Class B district title. Thompson is the first to admit "it won't be easy."

The reason for Thompson's cautionary warning is that Bishop Borgess is ranked among the best in the state while Robichaud, Inkster's natural rival, has already put the Vikings down twice this year. Add to that the likes of an always pesky Dearborn Divine Child and Dearborn, and, well, it's going to be rough.

Inkster joins the fun the first night, Monday, March 7 when the Vikings take on Redford Thurston at 7:30 p.m. If the Vikings win, it will advance to the semifinals where it will play Dearborn Heights Crestwood at 6 p.m. on Thursday, March 10.

The championship will be decided at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 12.

Meanwhile, Robichaud will have the rougher time of the two to reach the finals. The Bulldogs will host, Bishop Borgess, at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, March 8 with the survivor advancing to the semifinals to take the winner of the Dearborn - Divine Child game at 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, March 10.

'Dead last'

Chiefs look to '89 for winning swim year

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It was a classical, better still biblical, case of the first being last and hopefully next year the last being first.

In their first year of swimming competition, New Boston Huron finished last at the nine-team invitational staged on Saturday.

Coach Butch Gubbini's Chiefs picked up a mere 14 points as Erie Mason tankers dominated the meet with 389 team points to win the title.

> It is a start from which we can build. We have 10 of our 13 kids back, and that will give us a fairly solid nucleus for next year.
> – Coach Butch Gubbini

"If anything, the meet showed us how much we need to work to catch up with other area teams," Gubbini said.

"This is our first year of varsity competition and, although some would be disappointed with our performances, I believe that it is a beginning."

Huron did come away with one medal - in the 200-yard medley relay event. In that event, Gubbini penciled in Ken Hermann, Eric Dober, John Dolencia and Todd Hamilton in his lineup and the foursome re-

Injury plagued Vikings fall

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Injuries caught up with Inkster High Friday night as the Vikings fell to title-hopeful Highland Park 59-49 before a partisan Highland Park basketball crowd.

The Parker victory set up tonight's showdown with Dearborn Heights Robichaud which kept its championship dreams alive with a come-from-behind victory over Oak Park. Highland Park will have the opportunity of hosting tonight's Suburban Athletic Conference finale.

Inkster could have helped its neighboring rivals, but Coach George Thompson's cagers just didn't have the scoring power - or the manpower last week. At least two of the starting Inkster five are hurting with injuries.

If Robichaud can stop the Parkers, the Bulldogs will be able to salvage a share of the title. Coach Monte Dennard's Bulldogs head into tonight's showdown with a 9-2 conference record while Highland Park brings a 10-1 mark into the contest.

The Vikings were down by as much as 18 points against the Parkers who jumped out to a 16-10 first period lead and held a 31-13 half time advantage. Yes, that halftime score isn't a typographical error. The Vikings scored only three points for their sweat during the entire second period.

And that is the first time in recent history any team has managed to hold an Inkster varsity club to one basket for a period.

Thompson lauded his players for the "brave comeback", but also was very critical at the officiating which he categorized as "horrendous".

"I usually don't comment on the officials," Thompson said. "I believe they have a job to do out there and we have ours. But, believe me, they were horrendous. They allowed Highland Park to shove, push and climb all over our players. It was ridiculous after all this isn't the NBA."

The Vikings managed to outscore their hosts 25-11 in the third period to close within five (43-38) thanks to Marvin Abney who scored seven of his 13 points and Michael Lee who had five points in the third period.

Inkster lost its momentum in the final frame when the Vikings missed a layup off of an excellent fast break.

Abney and Lee finished the evening with 13 points each and Lorenzo Terrell chipped in 10 for the Vikings who made five of nine free throws. In the meantime, the Parkers had four players in double figures with Ernest Adams's 16 leading the pack.

Duel under the basket

Inkster's Marvin Abney (44) has the inside position and Robichaud's Michael Aaron (23) is on the outside as the two rivals duel for control of this rebound. Robichaud stopped their SAC foes for the second time this year and may have to do it again next week. The two teams are in separate brackets at the Class B district play offs slated for Bishop Borgess and could possibly meet in the championship game. Robichaud rallies past Oak Park

Although they didn't get the needed help from natural rival Inkster, Dearborn Heights Robichaud kept its title ambers burning Friday night by burning Oak Park.

Coach Monte Dennard's Bulldogs rallied for a 75-70 victory over Oak Park, setting up a showdown with Highland Park for the Suburban Athletic Conference basketball crown.

Highland Park will enter tonight's game with the home court advantage and a one-game cushion. The Parkers are sporting a 10-1 SAC (17-2 overall) record and a loss tonight to the visiting Bulldogs would create co-champions. Robichaud needed this victory for more than one reason, according to their rookie coach.

"We really needed this one," Dennard moaned after his team disposed of the Redskins of Oak Park. "It's tough enough having to go to Highland Park, but it would be even tougher for us to go there after losing to Oak Park."

The first time around Robichaud stopped Highland Park, and the Bulldogs were riding the crest of a 10-game winning streak before things began to fall apart for them.

And it was Michael Aaron who injected some life into faltering Bulldog offense in the final period that saved the evening for them. Aaron fired in 10 of his 14 points during the last eight minutes and also came up with a crucial steal under the Redskins' basket.

When Andre Barnett canned two free throws with seven seconds remaining, that sealed the victory for the Bulldogs and doomed Oak Park.

Robichaud received another superlative performance from Randall James who scored 17 points while Jonathon Marshall contributed 13.

Robichaud will join Inkster at the Class B district playoffs on Monday in quest of a post-season title. The Bulldogs drew host, Bishop Borgess, the second night (Tues., March 8) for their first game (See Related Story on Page B-4).

Maurice Brantley(32) has an easy under-the-basket two-pointer for Belleville in a recent match up against Wayne Memorial. Belleville and Coach Michael Garland's basketball fortunes have taken a turn for the good as they return to Wayne to compete for the Class A district crown. The Tigers will also find Romulus, which is seeking its third consecutive district crown, ready to defend their title. District competition will get under way Monday night. ANP photo by Chris Pandel

Belleville grappler is champion

Former Belleville High grappler, Doug Chapman, will travel to Nebraska-Omaha to compete in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Division II wrestling championships after picking up the mideastern crown last week.

Chapman, an All-Area and Suburban 8 Conference champ while at Belleville, is presently attending Ferris State University.

Chapman met and conquered Grand Valley's Jim Koerber in the finals of the 190-pound class to claim the mideast championship and qualify for the nationals. The Belleville grappler posted a 12-4 decision over Koerber.

A junior, Chapman will take a 27-8 won-lost record to the national tournament.

sponded with the ninth best time of the evening, a 2:01.0.

Dober also finished ninth in the 100-yard breaststroke. Teammate Dolencia accounted for a 12th-place finish for the 100-yard backstroke while Todd Hamilton finished with an 11th-place medal in diving.

Hamilton also has qualified for the Class B regional competitions to be staged this week.

Huron brought the curtains down on the 1988 season with a 2-8-1 won-lost-tied year. The Chiefs are looking forward to the 1989 campaign when 10 of 13 members of the present squad will be returning to compete for what may be the first Huron Conference Swim championship.

"At present, swimming is one sport where there is no conference championship because the majority of the participating schools didn't have teams," Gubbini explained. "That may change next year because at least five of the eight schools in our conference will field or are contemplating on fielding teams."

Along with Huron, other schools that have established swim programs include Riverview, Monroe Catholic Central and Gibraltar Carlson.

Monroe Jefferson has recently constructed an Olympic-size pool, the first of its kind in the league if not the area.

Snowbirds

It is such an incredible feeling. Having a load of sand delivered to your home would surely make you feel as if you are in paradise.

• Of course, when most people think of a winter get-away, they think of a hotel pool surrounded by lounge chairs. Swimming would probably be out of the question, but a kiddie pool in the living room with your favorite outdoor lounge chair might satisfy the same need.

For extra convincing, throw in a cool drink, sunglasses, suntan lotion and wet towels.

• Surrounding yourself with tropical plants might do the trick. Well, probably not . . . .

• For those desperate for the activity of summer time, a frisbee tournament in the living room is the only cure. A volleyball game would probably relieve the pain more quickly, but it would require a much larger area.

If none of these seems to fulfill the need to get away from the Michigan thaw, keep buying lottery tickets and maybe you will get lucky enough to enjoy "the real thing."

Cooking

PEARL NOODLES
Tarhonya

2 cups flour
2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter
3 cups chicken soup or stock
Salt and pepper to taste

Mix flour, eggs and salt together. Add water if necessary to make a stiff dough. Knead into a ball and grate on medium side of grater. Spread out to dry overnight.

Melt butter. Add dried noodles and brown 5 to 10 minutes, stirring frequently to prevent burning.

Add soup, 1/2 cup at a time. Cook covered, until liquid is absorbed. Season to taste.

STUFFED CABBAGE
Toltott kaposzta

1 1/2 pound lean pork, ground
1/2 cup rice
2 medium onions chopped
4 tablespoons bacon fat
1 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
2 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 pint water
1 small can tomatoes
1 small can sauerkraut
1 large head cabbage
1 pound neck bones or pig hocks (optional)
1 egg, well beaten

Fill large pot half full with water. Bring to a boil and add 2 teaspoons salt and 1 tablespoon vinegar. Core cabbage, place in boiling water to cover. With fork in one hand and knife in other hand, keep cutting off the leaves as they become wilted. Drain. Trim thick center vein from cabbage leaf. Set cabbage leaves aside to cool.

Parboil rice in 1 1/2 quarts of boiling water for 5 minutes. Drain, thoroughly.

Fry chopped onion in bacon fat until light brown. Cool. Mix all other ingredients with rice and onion mixture, blend thoroughly. Place 1 large tablespoon of meat mixture into each cabbage leaf. Roll up and tuck both ends in to make a nice, neat roll.

Rinse sauerkraut in strainer with cold water and let drain. Place neck bones or pig hocks with a layer of sauerkraut in bottom of 6-quart pan. Place cabbage rolls close together in layers. Sprinkle 1/3 of remaining sauerkraut on cabbage rolls. Place 1/2 can tomatoes on top, continue process until cabbage rolls are used up. Put remaining sauerkrat and tomatoes on top.

Sprinkle with salt. Add 1 pint of water or enough to cover. Cook for about 1 1/2 hours.

KALACS

1 1/2 cakes yeast
1 large can condensed milk (heat to lukewarm)
3 level cups unsifted flour
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 egg yolks
1/2 pound butter

Dissolve yeast in 1/2 cup of lukewarm milk. Mix the dry ingredients together. Blend the rest of the lukewarm milk with the egg yolks and stir into the yeast mixture. Mix all ingredients together and knead into soft dough working until shiny and smooth. Form into two balls and let dough rest 10 minutes. Roll out each ball of dough into 1-inch thickness and spread softened butter over each piece of dough. Fold over all four corners to center of dough to completely cover the butter and let dough rest 1/2 hour. Continue this process four times, spreading butter, rolling, folding and letting dough rest 1/2 hour each time. After fourth time, roll dough out to about 1/2-inch thickness, spread with nut filling and roll up like a jelly roll. Place in buttered pan and let rise for 45 minutes. Brush tops with beaten egg yolk and bake in 350 degree oven for 50 minutes.

Nut filling:
2 eggs (separated)
1/4 pound butter
1 cup sugar
1 pound ground nut meats

Cream egg yolks with sugar thoroughly and add softened butter. Add ground nut meats. Lightly fold beaten egg whites into the mixture.

MIGRAINE HEADACHES—CAUSES AND TREATMENTS

By Andrew L. Marcus, M.D.

If you are one of the 10 percent of the population who suffers from migraine headaches, there is little need to suffer anymore. Great progress has been made in identifying and treating migraines. There are new drugs available today that offer excellent results.

The newest group of drugs is called calcium channel blockers. They modify many factors that cause migraine headaches.

Other drugs modify the transmission of certain brain signals; while still others, which are similar to aspirin but more effective, are used in treating migraines.

WHO GETS MIGRAINES AND WHY?

Heredity plays a major role. Of the 10 percent of the population who suffer from migraines, 85 percent are women.

Stress is another factor. Migraines often begin just after a stressful situation has ended. Learning how to deal with stress can go a long way in reducing the frequency and severity of these headaches.

Too much or too little sleep can bring them on, and certain foods have been found to trigger them — chocolate, red wine, beer, and fermented products such as breads, pickles, and cheeses.

WHAT ARE THE SYMPTOMS?

There are several types of migraines, each unique, although there are some similar symptoms for all. These include frontal, one-sided headache, nausea, vomiting, and sensitivity to light. Symptoms can last from a few hours to several days.

Common migraine—appears suddenly with no warning.

Classical migraine—has warning signs such as a temporary loss or distortion of vision.

Cluster headaches—found mostly in men, are frequent, sharp headaches with eye pain, eye redness, and tearing. They come in clusters and can disappear for long periods of time.

Complicated migraines—are the dangerous ones. Symptoms include numbness or weakness on one side of the body. It is possible for an individual to have a stroke during this type of migraine headache. It needs to be treated with daily medication.

A word of caution: not every headache that has migraine symptoms is a migraine. It could be a symptom of a much more serious medical problem, and should be discussed with your doctor.
